

MRS. SCHECK IS ROBBED AGAIN; ACCUSES FRIEND

Tells Court She Believes Miss Brooks Sent Man Who Held Her Up.
BUT GIRL IS SET FREE.

Woman, Whom Police Held as Intoxicated, Is Also Discharged by Judge.

Mrs. Annie Schreck, who says she has been robbed so often of late that by this time she ought to be used to it, accused her former chum, Miss Annie Brooks, in the West Side Court today of being accessory to a little encounter in Morningside Park last night in which Mrs. Schreck says she was robbed of a roll of four one-dollar bills.

When Mrs. Schreck staggered, breathless and hysterical into the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street Station last night and told of the robbery, she was looked up and a formal charge of intoxication made against her. She is the wife of William Schreck, a lawyer with offices at No. 150 Nassau street, and she lives at No. 201 West Eighty-third street. Magistrate House said Mr. Schreck lived with his parents at Nyack, but Mrs. Schreck denied this. The Magistrate dismissed the case against Miss Brooks, and finding there was no other charge than one of intoxication against Mrs. Schreck, dismissed her also.

Two Young Men Appear.
Mrs. Schreck said that on Tuesday two young men, well dressed and of ingratiating manner, called at her home, introducing themselves as friends of Miss Brooks and inviting her to a party at Miss Brooks's home, No. 22 West One Hundred and Fourteenth street.

"I wouldn't go to the party," said Mrs. Schreck, "but they seemed nice young men, and I thought anybody Annie would send must be all right. So I asked them to stay and meet my husband, but they left."

"Yesterday they came back and stayed until it was dark. They brought a bottle of whiskey, and we nearly finished it before we started, as we decided to go to see Miss Brooks. We began to walk, and when we got into Morningside Park I found that I was going in an opposite direction to that of Miss Brooks's home. I told them about this, but they just laughed and made me sit down on a bench. Then they robbed me. While one held my head the other took my money, and they ran away."

"How many times have you been robbed before?" asked Magistrate House.

"Two—once on Jan. 10 and the last time two weeks ago," answered Mrs. Schreck.

The Other Robberies.
The Magistrate then brought out that Mrs. Schreck, the first time, had complained of having her pocket picked of a diamond ring in the rear of a saloon by a young girl and that she was afterward seen recovered from a pawn shop.

The second time she said she had been held up on the street and a ring, chain and locket taken from her. Magistrate House also secured the admission from Mrs. Schreck that she was averse to living the rural life, such as Nyack offers, although her husband is much attached to the idea of an existence.

When the officers called for Miss Brooks, she was dancing "The Merry Widow" in her room. She held in court she knew nothing of the young men and had not sent them to call on Mrs. Schreck, whom she had not seen in some time. Magistrate House said there was no evidence against her.

JUDGE DENIES 'PULL' FOR 'BIG TIM'S' MAN

Swan Retorts Hotly to Hint of Deputy Attorney-General.

Judge Swan, of the Court of General Sessions, and Deputy Attorney-General Darling had another controversy to-day over the case of Charles Williamson, a Lieutenant of Timothy D. Sullivan, who is under indictment for alleged violation of the election laws. In a dispute in court last week over this case, Mr. Darling referred to Judge Swan as "one of the 'Boss' judges."

It has been plain all along that the Deputy Attorney-General does not wish the case of Williamson to be tried before Judge Swan. He has secured certain delays to keep the case in Part I until Judge Swan takes his turn in another part and a new Judge comes in. Leonard Scrimin, counsel for Williamson, appeared before Judge Swan to-day and moved for permission to inspect the minutes of the Grand Jury. He had his papers all ready and passed them up to the Court.

"I am not prepared to argue this motion now," said the Deputy Attorney-General, "I ask for a postponement until next Monday, as I have a very important case and I don't want to be forestalled. There is no reason why this defendant should be treated with special consideration. Here is a case in which a very influential politician went to headquarters."

"Stop right there!" shouted the Judge, "smashing the desk with his gavel. You must address yourself to a legal argument. I have shown you more consideration than I have to any other lawyer in this court. Mr. Darling, 'Big Influences have been brought to bear in behalf of this defendant,' exclaimed Mr. Darling.

"The defendant has his rights in this court," interrupted Judge Swan. "I want to impress upon you, Mr. Darling, that the Deputy Attorney-General, that no race, creed or color of political party will be shown any distinction in these courts. All stand on the same level. I adjourn this hearing until next Tuesday, in Part II, where I will be sitting."

Mr. Darling made no effort to conceal his disappointment.

FINDS JEWELS SHE SAID TEACHER HAD STOLEN FROM HER

Young Woman Exonerated in Court and Accuser Is Rebuked.

Miss Madeline Mendes, the pretty young school teacher who was arrested and lodged in a cell last night, charged with the theft of a locket and a diamond ring set with rubies valued at $500, was set free and exonerated by Magistrate Wahle in the West Side Court today when the girl's accuser, Mrs. Julia Frandsen, of No. 68 West Sixty-fifth street, explained that the jewels had been found.

"You reserve the censure of this court," said the Magistrate to Mrs. Frandsen, "for having brought such a serious charge against this young woman and causing her arrest without basis for such a charge except a woman's suspicion—your own."

"You are honorably exonerated," continued Judge Wahle, turning to Miss Mendes, "and I would suggest that you take civil action against this complainant for the groundless charge of theft which she made against you."

"Thank you, Judge," murmured the girl. "I certainly was innocent of stealing that jewelry, and I am inclined to think that the charge was the result of a conspiracy between my sister and this complaint to set me out of the house."

Miss Mendes hurried from the courtroom and refused to explain the suspicious she entertained against her sister.

The arrest of Miss Mendes was made by Central Office detectives at the residence of Mrs. Frandsen, with whom the girl's sister, Madeline, lived in a furnished room. Madeline had been stopping at the house for three days with her sister when she was visiting.

Yesterday, Mrs. Frandsen alleged the jewelry which she had placed on the mantle of the dining-room disappeared, and the investigation of the police followed. This morning Mrs. Frandsen told the Magistrate the jewels had been placed back on the mantle, where she found them as soon as she entered the room. She could not explain how they could have been replaced.

Miss Madeline left to-day for White Plains to see her father, Paul, who is a retired merchant in that city.

GOT $500 FOR HIS FINGER.

PATERSON, Feb. 27.—A jury in the Circuit Court has awarded John Solars a verdict of $500 for the loss of the third finger of his right hand. The Algonquin Company, in the mills of which Solars was employed, was the defendant. Solars sued for $10,000.

RHEUMATISM

THERE IS HOPE

I was every chronic rheumatic to throw away all medicines, all liniments, all rubs, and give my RHEUMATISM CURE. No matter what your doctor may say, no matter how prolonged you may be against all advertised remedies, go at once to your druggist and get a bottle of the RHEUMATISM CURE. There are no cures in a bottle and no one lady says she has cured her rheumatism. A few doses will take away the aches and pains, and a cure will follow before one bottle is used.
